

OBITUARY.

Samuel Astor.

Samuel Astor, one of the brightest of the many little orphans being reared at the Pearl Wagon Orphan Home, died there yesterday morning at an early hour after a lingering illness of typhoid fever. The little boy had reached the age of 4 years, and was loved both by the matron and inmates of the home. The funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon at the home by Rev. Percival H. Whaley, and the interment was in St. John's cemetery.
